

WHOLESALE ARRESTS TO COME WHEN GOVERNOR NAMES A NEW JUDGE FOR MUNICIPAL COURT

WARRANTS HAVE BEEN PREPARED, CHARGING TEN RESIDENTS OF JANESVILLE WITH VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS.

CLEAN-UP IS STARTED

Five Retail Liquor Dealers Liable to Lose Their Licenses—Twelve Other Cases Being Investigated by Detectives.

But for an unforeseen legal complication that, after tomorrow, Janesville will have no presiding judge of the municipal court, the clean-up of the liquor law would have been issued today, on evidence in the hands of Chief of Police E. H. Ransom, for violation of both city ordinances and state laws. In all twenty-one warrants were prepared for Judge Fife's signature which included sale of liquor by saloon proprietors after hours and on Sundays, selling liquor without a license and for conducting houses of assignation.

The Situation.
Through the failure of Governor McGovern to name a successor to Judge Fife's position as municipal judge and owing to the appointment of Judge Fife to the vacancy caused by the demise of the late Judge Sale, after tomorrow morning becomes effective and he assumes his new duties as county judge. Janesville will have no presiding municipal judges in the county, with two courts, one at Beloit and one at Janesville, the charter which created the Janesville court gave it judges exclusive jurisdiction over all civil cases, in which class the present prosecutions would fall.

Not For A Week.
Governor McGovern is out of the state, in fact, at Denver attending the conference of governors and by a long distance telephone communication with his private secretary, Mr. McGovern, it was learned that he would not return to Madison until September first and that until his return no appointment of a judge for the Janesville court would be made. While this delay is being made, the evidence in the cases in question is on file and warrants will be issued as soon as a new judge is appointed.

Skiffish Work.
The evidence against the ten persons, who will be arrested later, was obtained by private detectives who were employed by Mayor Fathers to ferret out violations of the law, which is seemingly to discover under present conditions. They have been at work since August 9th. Since Thursday last four men and three women have been in the city and the evidence, which is conclusive in ten instances that plans were laid for issuing warrants at once. Owing to the delay it is probable that the evidence in twelve other cases now being investigated will have been secured and warrants for these additional alleged violators will be asked for.

The Result.
It has been known for some months past that systematic efforts have been attempted by a certain clique in the city seeking to discredit Mayor Fathers and the city administration that the city ordinances were being violated by certain persons in such a way it was impossible to secure sufficient evidence to secure a conviction. It was with a view of curbing this and securing evidence that would be going to the city, when warrants were issued, that Mayor Fathers secured the services of private detectives and the net result up-to-date is sufficient conclusive proof of violations of the law by certain persons, by bootleggers and by persons conducting assignation houses to mean almost certain conviction.

Still at Work.
The detectives are still at work on several cases and will also be employed later to make return trips to Janesville as the necessary arises for future investigations. Mayor Fathers is confident that the city ordinances are being obeyed, that the guilty he made to suffer. While the names of those for whom warrants will be asked are not yet made public, it is sufficient to say that the retail liquor dealers, whose alleged offense is selling liquor after hours, on Sundays and otherwise violating the city ordinances, and the other cases for illegal sale of liquor and houses for conducting assignation houses.

Report Exhaustive.
The report of the detectives employed on the case is most exhaustive. It covers a wide range of cases and shows that with the exception of the cases mentioned, Janesville is rapidly becoming morally clean. The news that detectives have been at work in the city for many days past will come as a surprise to the majority of the citizens as well as to the violators of the law whose arrest will be asked for. The arrest of Ransom, early in the week, was the first step in this direction. The names of the arrests which will come when the new judge is named will be another step towards cleaning up Janesville and keeping it clean.

The Mayor is going about this business quietly and without making the movement or law and order ridiculous, as many are anxious should be the result. Anyone who knows of violations will find the mayor ready to do his duty without fuss or feign. The mayor's friends are confident that his purpose will be effectuated in due season and are content to let matters come to a head. Some of the names who are most alarmed are those among the men who fought his hardest.

Are Women Smarter Than Men?

It is admitted that a woman knows how to buy more for a dollar than a man does. Let the average married man do the household shopping for a week and see how the cost of living will jump. Women are more constant buyers of advertising than men. Women read advertisements because they appeal to their innate sense of values. They take pride in getting the most for their money. They like to shop—and before actually visiting the stores they read the newspapers to see what the stores have to offer. Yet more men "throw out his chest" and prates of his superiority. Read the advertising in today's Gazette and see what an index it is to your immediate needs.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Sherbrooke, Quebec, Aug. 26.—The possibility of a long drawn out fight in court over the constitutionality of the Canadian immigration act under which it is proposed to deport Harry Thaw was the favorite theme of the two factions gathered at Sherbrooke. Going over the matter informally W. T. Jerome and District Attorney Conger of Dulles county sat by the roar of a fire in a hotel, the storm center since the arrival of Thaw of nearly all conferences about him. "I can't express an opinion on every theoretical defense suggested by Thaw's lawyers said Mr. Jerome. We hope to get him back to Matteawan where he belongs, but it does look as if we were in for a siege."

LENROOT WILL NOT RUN FOR SENATOR

Superior Congressman Denies Starting Report, That He is to Run For United States Senator.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 26.—I am not a candidate for United States senator and I have not made any announcement to that effect. It is my present intention to make the race to succeed myself in this district. This was the statement of Congressman Lenroot of Superior over the long distance telephone Tuesday. He was asked regarding a report that he would enter the senatorial contest. It being reported that Mr. Lenroot had made such an announcement in a letter, "There is no such letter," was the way Mr. Lenroot disposed of that portion of the story. Mr. Lenroot's denial is in line with his position taken last winter when it was declared he would seek reelection to congress, and leave a clear hole for the La Follette candidate for senator. Mr. Lenroot's ambition is to become speaker of the House. The story that Lenroot would be senatorial candidate has been supported by a progressive ranks and is regarded with incredulity as the effect would be to divide the La Follette vote and throw strength to the Governor McGovern's chances.

PRESIDENT AGCEDES TO HUERTA REQUEST TO DELAY MESSAGE

WILSON POSTPONES DELIVERY OF SPECIAL MESSAGE ON MEXICAN SITUATION UNTIL WEDNESDAY.

SUBMISSION POSSIBLE

Dispatches From Lind and Huerta Government Indicate Possible Settlement According to Wilson's Proposals.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 26.—President Wilson today postponed until Wednesday his special message to Congress on the Mexican situation. Preparations made at the capitol hurriedly to join secretaries of the house and senate were called off. President Wilson's message consisting of about 4,000 words was locked up in the White House vault awaiting next developments. It is generally understood that the message is very kind in tone toward Mexico.

Request Postponement.

At the White House Secretary Tammity gave out this statement: "Last night about midnight after the conference with President Wilson and the foreign relations committee of both houses a dispatch came from Mexico City in which Mr. Lind united with Mr. Garbino in requesting the president to postpone his address to Congress until Wednesday in order to afford the authorities in Mexico City opportunity for further consideration of proposals by the United States in view of certain supplementary suggestions by Mr. Lind. The president has of course consented and it is expected he will address Congress at one o'clock on Wednesday."

Man Accepts Plan

Eleventh hour developments in the Mexican situation today however, postponed the delivery of President Wilson's special message to Congress until Wednesday and indication that the Huerta government might after all withdraw or modify their rejection of the proposal of the United States at the request of Sr. Gamba, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, which was officially stated in that connection that no change would the United States withdraw from the basic principles one of which is paramount the refusal to recognize Huerta.

Lind Not Recalled

Immediately upon assembling the house passed necessary resolutions for a joint session to be held tomorrow to hear President Wilson's address. The resolution was passed just as soon as it came into the Senate.

White House Officials issued a positive statement that Mr. Lind has not been recalled from Mexico City and is still left for Vera Cruz. It would be only if the Huerta government expected to return to Mexico City to continue the negotiations.

The Mexican situation so absorbed the attention of Secretary Bryan last night that he forgot to go home. While waiting for messages from John Lind last night he curled up on the couch where he slept until time to go home for his breakfast this morning.

Home States Proposals.

Mexico, August 26.—Official announcement was made of the original proposals by the United States prepared to Huerta by Mr. Lind. They were:

1. Cessation of hostilities and a definite armistice.
2. An early and free election.
3. Huerta to sign himself not to be a candidate.

Agreement by all parties to abide by the result of the election.

Upon these proposals the Huerta government at the last moment asked further time for consideration and upon certain supplementary suggestions made by Mr. Lind the nature of which is not being divulged here, request for postponement was made.

SPORT Snap-Shots

Johnny Lavens sure is a lucky boy. It isn't every youngster who can get kicked out of the St. Louis Browns right into the Philadelphia Athletics. But that's what has happened to the young Michigan shortstop. When Lavens got four hits in forty times at bat, George Stovall made up his mind that the hour had come to dispose of him, despite the fact that he is one of the finest fielding shortstops that ever broke into fast company. Just then came the injury to Jack Barry and the collapse of Connie Mack's infield substitute. There was a crying need for a shortstop, and Lavens looked good to the Athletics manager. By joining the Mackies just at this time, Lavens is eligible to the world's series. If he makes at all good—and Mack doesn't expect him to hit—he will in all probability have been kicked into something like $4,000. Too bad some of the rest of us can't get a few kicks like that.

Freddie Welsh is said to be the wealthiest boxer in the game. His fortune is estimated at $100,000.

Can it be possible that waivers have been asked on Long Cy Falkenberg, the Cleveland Naps' remarkable comeback hurler, who started the season by winning ten in a row? There are rumors that waivers actually have been asked and Manager Griffith of the Washington club is quoted as saying: "Yes, I am refusing to waive on Falkenberg and will take him at a reasonable price. I won't stand for any holdup, though, by the Cleveland club. I think he could win some games for us." Some think Griffith's statement was made just to promote discord in the Cleveland organization. Falkenberg was brought back from the minors this spring. The first ten games he pitched were all winners. Then he suffered some hard-luck defeats in which the Naps game him mighty few runs. Then he lost form entirely, threw poorly, and quite recently a sore arm shelved him.

"The first bout I ever fought in the ring was my last. I thought at the time," reminisced Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champ, the other day. "It was with Herman Zahmizer at New Castle, Pa. I was nervous and excited from the paper talk that I proceeded to the contest. And when I ducked under the ropes the crowd around the ringside decried my physical proportions as compared to the bigger and sturdier Zahmizer. They thought I wouldn't last a round and had much the same feeling myself. As they put the gloves on me I had a conversation with myself and amounted to this: 'If I ever get out of this ring alive I will never enter another one. I not only got out of it heart whole and fancy free, but I stopped Zahmizer in nine rounds, and then, having won and being full of enthusiasm, I naturally revised my decision about entering the game.'"

Jack Read, the Australian lightweight who is now in this country seeking new purses to conquer, fought sixty bouts in his own country before coming here with the Langford Woodman combination. Read beat Cooper Hayes, Frank Picato and Hook Keyes.

TWO MAKE ATTEMPT TO SWIM CHANNEL

Champion American Swimmer Starts on Difficult Feat—Frenchman Makes Trial—Hawker Resumes Flight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Dover, England, Aug. 26.—Henry Sullivan, American long distance swimmer, left this morning in an attempt to swim the English channel. He started from a motor boat near South Foreland at 6:45. The weather was fine and the temperature of the water 61 degrees. Sullivan expected to have crossed water during the first hour's swim in which he expected to clear the much dreaded Goodwin sands after which he would not have to contend with the tide. He was accompanied by a motor boat carrying his trainer and coach. The feat of swimming the channel has been accomplished only twice. First by Matthew Webb in 1875 and by W. T. Burgess in 1901. Webb was an Englishman and Burgess a naturalized Frenchman. Sullivan comes from Lowell, Mass.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Berlin, Aug. 26.—As a preliminary to the most imposing and extensive German army maneuvers in years the Kaiser today held an inspection of the 5th Army Corps at Breslau. Later in the week his Majesty will inspect the 6th Army Corps at Osnabrück. The army corps are to form the opposing forces in the great maneuvers to be held early next month. The scene of the maneuvers will be the historic plains of Prussian Silesia. This year aeroplanes and dirigibles are to be used to a greater extent than ever before, and every military officer in Germany will be at the disposition of the two command-in-chief of the opposing armies. The aeroplanes will be employed as swift dispatch bearers and for reconnoitering purposes. The dirigibles will be equipped with light wireless outfits and their principal function will be to transmit instructions from the commanders to their officers.

CROWDS PAY VISIT TO MILLER'S SHOWS

Enthusiastic Praise for Carnival Attractions Given Under Auspices of Moose Lodge.

A big crowd was out last evening to pay a visit to the A. B. Miller Greater shows and it was a merry pastime throng for one and all seemed to be having the time of their lives as they wandered their way through the crowd to the different shows.

The trained wild animal show seemed to be the chief point of interest and it must be said that the show deserves all the patronage it can get for one sits spellbound for an hour or more as you watch the lady and gentleman trainer putting these monster beasts through their different stunts and it seems that one gets several thrills that are not down on the program.

Then comes the Cabaret show where they entertain for almost an hour introducing singers and dancers of all nations. It is strictly moral and can be attended by every one.

Miller's Big circus side show comes next and you won't be disappointed if you attend. Then see Laughland with its laughing mirrors and cyclorama lenses. Then the Divona show which is known as the "Water Circus" and which also presents strange and curious people from all parts of the world.

Broadway Belles which is a tabloid musical comedy and vaudeville combined. Katzenjammer Castle where they manufacture races give the spectator a series of thrills that are not soon forgotten. The most intrepid riding imaginable is given by these three young fellows as they rear around the trail structure riding 60 miles an hour on a 75 degree incline, saucer shaped track.

Then see the Dixieland Minstrel show. All real old southern dapper performers. Jungleland is next and it is properly named.

Viola show where four young ladies dance way down deep in a way. Then see Wonderful and the model city.

Taken all in all, it is the biggest and best out door show of its kind that has visited Janesville.

WEATHER FORECAST

Janesville: fair weather will continue in this vicinity, without much change in temperature.

LEST WE FORGET.

For months past there has been a concerted effort on the part of a certain element in Janesville to bring discredit to the Mayor and city administration for laxity in enforcing the city ordinances and state laws. Evasion of the laws has been encouraged, evidently with a view of bringing such evasions to light at an opportune time seeking to discredit Mayor Fathers and his efforts to make Janesville a clean city.

The same element that stood behind the recent recall are responsible for this attempt. They have been ready to even sacrifice their own friends to gain the ultimate end. In fact they have boasted that the city was in a worse condition morally, than in any time past. Have hinted that they had evidence they would be glad to present to the public to show that the laws were not enforced, that vice was rampant. Have stated they would welcome a grand jury investigation that they might present their evidence and even intimate that their next move would be to seek the impeachment of the Mayor for malfeasance in office.

It has been hard work to sit close under this veiled insinuation and remain quiet while the underhand work continued. On July 22nd the voters of Janesville expressed their confidence in Mayor Fathers and his platform of a clean city, a fearless administration of the state laws and city ordinances. It was part of the plan that was to come. For weeks past detectives from a Milwaukee agency have been at work in the city ferreting out the situation, seeking evidence against the offenders and while their work is not yet finished, the results to date are such that the Mayor and City Attorney have taken the first step in the cleaning up of the city.

Warrants will be issued, arrests will be made, the trials will follow and will disclose the true situation in the city. It is with satisfaction that the Gazette is able to give this announcement to the public. Never for a minute has faith in Mayor Fathers efforts been questioned by those who knew him and his determination to be the real Mayor of Janesville despite concerted efforts to belittle his efforts. It has been an uphill fight against odds but the end is near and if the elements which have sought to discredit the present administration are really seeking the best interests of the city, as they have asserted in public statements, they will turn to and add their evidence they claim to have gathered to that already obtained and make the present movement one grand clean up regardless of whom it will affect. The voters of Janesville expressed their confidence in Mayor Fathers and this confidence has not been missed. Today's results alone are worth the effort made to during the strenuous recall campaign to give Janesville a clean honest civic administration.

NO COMPROMISE.

Colonel Roosevelt returned from the Indian country of the southwest and made his first public address at Chicago last evening. His slogan of no compromise with the republican party was voiced at a dinner given by the Bull Mooseers to their peerless leader. Either the Bull Mooseers swallow the G. O. P. or the two parties remain separate and distinct as last year. It is either rule or ruin for Roosevelt.

In addition to the fact that he can't get a government job, the Democrat who shaved himself on March 4 last for the first time in sixteen years now finds that whiskers are again coming into fashion.

AMERICAN BANKERS

HONOR MOEHLLENPAH

Clinton Men Named on Committee to Discuss Currency Bill With President Wilson.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Clinton, Aug. 26.—H. A. Moehlenpah's selection on the important committee appointed at the recent meeting of the American Bankers' association was a signal honor to Mr. Moehlenpah as it is the first time a country banker has ever been given a place in an important national committee by the distinguished body of world financiers. The honor is much greater at this time than ever before in the history of the American Bankers' association as the impending financial legislation is the most important ever undertaken by the national government. Mr. Moehlenpah's selection was surely in recognition of his ability as one of the foremost students of financial matters in this country and Clinton residents to whom he is a friend and neighbor.

Mr. Moehlenpah will in all probability be a committee of the American Bankers' association from the middle west and west who will go to Washington to present to the president their plans of a compromise financial plan which embody features which the government and the American Bankers' association agree which does not at all seem likely under present plans on each side.

Mr. Moehlenpah, coming as he does from a country town of less than 1000, is certainly to be congratulated that he has been selected as capable to sit in conference with the greatest financiers of the world to work out the greatest financial problem that has ever confronted the American people.

CLOSES A CONTRACT

WITH TELEPHONE CO.

City Given Permission to Use Manholes of Rock County Telephone Company.—Council Takes Action.

Valuable concessions to the city have been made by the Rock County Telephone Company in a contract closed with the latter yesterday afternoon when President F. B. Farnsworth affixed his signature to the document. The city is given the permission to enter any man-hole of the company for the purpose of installing pipe conduits or conduits adjacent to those of the company in which to place fire and police signal cables, to place any of its cables in unused spaces in any of the conduits constructed by the company prior to August 1, 1913, and continue to use them while not needed by the company. The city may also at any time when the telephone company has a trench open for the laying of conduits place a cable or conduit in the trench at the expense of the city. It also is given the right to enter the company's manholes to make inspection or repair of its own wires and cables, providing that competent persons are employed.

The city carried out its part of the contract this afternoon when it passed an order granting the Rock County Telephone Company permission to place conduits in designated streets.

The company agrees to restore the surface of the streets, to protect the city against all damage which may ensue from such work and to repair defects in the streets that may occur by reason of said work.

The bond and oath of Francis C. Grant, appointed a member of the city and police commission, was received and approved.

Benjamin Barriage was granted permission to move a frame building from North First street to Hickory street along a specified route.

Part Van Houten was granted permission to erect a one story brick building on North High street to be used as a lunch room.

Roy Worthington and Charles Thompson were appointed special policemen. Their periods of service expire August 30. They will assist in policing the crowds at the carnival.

SWIMMING CLASSES

CLOSE AFTER MEET

Directors of Play Ground Hope for Big Attendance at Swimming Meet Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock the big water meet of the play ground boys will take place at the Goose Island swimming beach. As this will close the first year's play ground work and as the boys have taken an unusual amount of interest in the meet the directors extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend.

The boys have been divided into three groups ranging from the ages of twelve to sixteen and the winners of the first three places in each event will receive an honor ribbon. A diving float will be towed to the island for the boys to start the races from and the twelve foot tower will serve for the diving exhibitions.

The events in the meet will be as follows: Under twelve years, 25 breast stroke dash; 25 yard crawl stroke, 25 yards, back stroke and a 25 yards, 50 as you please. Within the ages of twelve to fourteen the same races will be run the distance being lengthened by ten yards. There will also be prizes for the best form diving from the spring board and from the top of the tower. Each of the divisions will have a distance under water swim. Boys from the ages of 14 to 18 will have 50 yard dashes besides the dives and under-water swimming contest.

Today the directors are holding an efficiency test in which the markings of the boys are recorded and will be used to compare with the figures gained at the big field day which will take place within a short time.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. DEMANDS OF POLICE
RIGID ENFORCEMENT OF THE ORDINANCES

Mayor James A. Fathers Gives Entire Police Force Plain Talk on Bettering of Service.

Demand for more efficient service by the police force of the city was made by Mayor James A. Fathers in an address to all his men at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock last evening. Chief of Police E. H. Hanson and every patrolman in the department was present with the exception of Harry Smith who was away on his vacation. The substance of the Mayor's address was as follows:

"Gentlemen, I wish to speak to you with reference to your duties as policemen. You are undoubtedly familiar with the rules and regulations of which you have copies and which I presume you make your study in order that you may become proficient in your work.

"Considerable complaint has reached me relative to the inaction of the police force. Let us remedy this defect. Your duties are plain and simple. They require vigilance and prompt action in all matters. You must be alert and 'on the job' every moment of the time while on duty and report all happenings that appear to be out of the ordinary to the Chief.

"We intend to prepare a report, blank so that you need not write your memories to make this report, but expect that you will jot down all the happenings in and about your beat for filing in the office of the Chief and for reference when necessary.

"Among other duties which as officers you are to perform, I want you to see to it that the saloons are closed at 11 p. m. and all day Sunday and at all other times when so directed by law or proper authority. I want the minors and women kept out of the saloons. I want the pool-rooms regulated and gambling stopped. I want women of known ill repute driven from the streets of the city and in consequence driven entirely from the community.

"Now men, we must believe that you are just as good and efficient officers as there are in any other police and we look to you for results. You must be well aware that the results we so fondly looked forward to have not fully materialized. Have you any reasons to present why this has not been so?

"I have many complaints from reliable sources that many infractions of the law are winked at or not noticed, as it were, by the police. These complaints may be justified and I am sure they are. I want to know that many complaints are being made by persons who desire only to complain without reference to the justice of the same.

"A policeman is clothed with absolute authority to vindicate the law. He need not wait until something illegal happens or is done before he acts. He has authority and the right, and it becomes his duty to forestall any act that is misdemeanor or a law or ordinance. He should be active and sensible to the fact that a law is being violated even if he does not actually see the act committed.

"I want you to be interested with me in uttering conditions with respect to obedience to the laws and ordinances. If our police force is inadequate to do the work we have a remedy we will not hesitate to use it. There is no reason why you should not do your duty without fear or favor."

The Mayor intimated that if it was the sense of the police force that wages were inadequate provision for an increase would be made in the next budget, but laid emphasis upon the point that whatever the wage they owed to the city their vigilance and unceasing care.

WESTERN EMPLOYEES
SEEK CONCESSIONS

Milwaukee and Northwestern Railroad Men Are Concerned in Present Negotiations.

With the situation between the eastern railroads and their 100,000 employees, involving a demand for a wage increase and betterment of working conditions, guttensettled, it became known on Monday that the 55,000 men on the railroad extinguish west from Chicago are centering their attention on that city, awaiting the result of a conference now on being held at Chicago, which resulted in considerable damage to the auto. The horse was struck by one of the auto fenders, but with the exception of a few slight bruises it was uninjured.

According to the story told by Miss Childs and verified by other witnesses of the accident, the responsibility for the accident rests with the driver of the delivery wagon who it is said was on the wrong side of the road.

The automobile was going north at the time of the accident. Just ahead of it was a load of hay. The delivery wagon, going south, suddenly swung around to the left side of the load of hay, making the collision with the automobile unavoidable.

Miss Childs, who claims to have been coasting at the time, shut down her brakes, causing the machine to skid into the curb. A rear wheel was broken, the left fender demolished, windshield displaced and lamps broken. The occupants of the car were uninjured.

AUTO IN COLLISION WITH DELIVERY RIG

Horse Escapes Uninjured But Auto Is Damaged—Blame Laid Upon The Driver of Delivery Wagon.

As the result of a mix-up at the corner of Oakland avenue and South Main street about nine o'clock this morning a collision took place between an automobile driven by Miss Frances Childs and the delivery wagon of Skeels's grocery, which resulted in considerable damage to the auto. The horse was struck by one of the auto fenders, but with the exception of a few slight bruises it was uninjured.

According to the story told by Miss Childs and verified by other witnesses of the accident, the responsibility for the accident rests with the driver of the delivery wagon who it is said was on the wrong side of the road.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

The New Series Premier

IN presenting the Series XXX, we recognize the fact that the buyer who changes from year to year makes the change, not because his old car has outlived its usefulness, but because it does not possess the latest and up-to-the-minute features. Either Premier buyers each year have been a year ahead of the times or the maker without Premier features has been a year behind.

In 1911 Premier was one of the few cars equipped with fore doors. Makers without fore doors were conspicuously out of date before the season was half over.

In August, 1912, when Premier with six years' experience in building Sixes offered a six-cylinder car of the highest quality for $2735, a new price basis was established for high class cars.

When in August, 1912, the Premier was announced in Sixes only, equipped with left-side drive, no projecting hinges, clean running boards, electric lights, a positive starter and a tire inflator, it was evident that Premier had again forged ahead and led in features to characterize the car of the future, if their judgment was correct.

The latest 1914 announcements of other makers feature the things which characterize the 1913 Premier. No buyer of a Series X, or 1913 Premier, will have occasion to change in 1914 to be up-to-date. No other car in 1913 possessed all of these up-to-date features characterizing Premier and which are being heralded as 1914 features by their makers.

We present the Premier Series XXX with full confidence of its holding Premier lead, adding to Premier prestige and reputation for quality and satisfaction.

Selling Service Means What? Selling Satisfaction

WITH an automobile, does the carrying of a big stock of parts, having an emergency trouble car available all the time, and a man at the telephone constantly, necessarily mean Selling Service? Could a railroad claim to sell service which has poor engines and rolling stock, and whose trains do not keep going, although this railroad might at all times have an emergency train to send to the help of the stranded passengers?

Taking you to your destination without delay or interruption is dependable service.

Can an automobile manufacturer or dealer sell the kind of service that people are looking for?

Not unless it is built in the car.

The dealer may assure you of prompt assistance and quick relief, but this does not make the car he is selling any more reliable or satisfactory.

The dealer should be ready and willing to serve his patrons, but after all, it is only the service gotten out of the car itself which satisfies.

The owner can not get satisfactory service out of a car unless it is in the car itself.

The public, the user, knows the cars which give service and are dependable.

What are the weaknesses of your car? Should they be there? Does the factory know they are there? Do they realize that in order to really sell service, that service must be built in the car?

Numerous Premier owners have toured Europe in their cars. When we have been asked what, if any, parts should be taken along, we inquired if experience has shown any parts as unreliable. As a result they left without extra parts. And we have never had a Premier driver stranded in Europe.

Is it reasonable to suppose that ten private owners would have left their chauffeurs at home and undertaken a trip across the continent in 1911, in their Premier cars, if the experience they had had with their Premiers had shown them unreliable or had failed to prove them absolutely dependable?

Records show that in one of the largest cities in America, one of the largest Premier distributing points, Premier has a record of not having lost a Premier owner in three seasons.

Would this be possible if satisfaction was not built in the Premier, and if these customers were not getting satisfaction out of their Premiers?

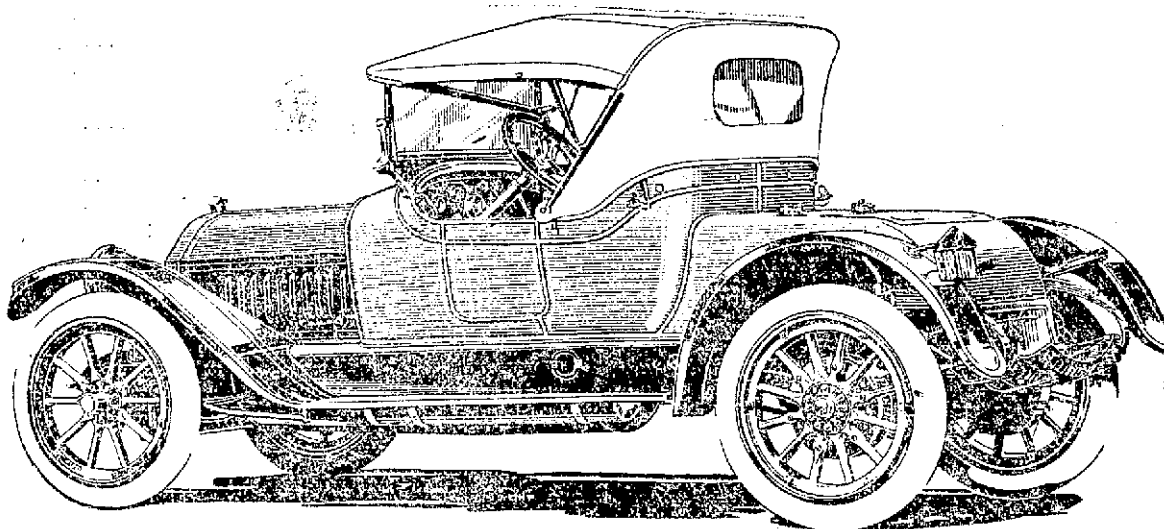

Remember, every car sold represents to the dealer either an asset or a liability.

If the service is not built in the car by the factory, it stands as an expense and liability to the dealer to maintain his position, and while he may give service in the way of help which might reflect credit on the dealer, is it not a fact that the customer today has a right to feel that he is entitled to expect this service in the car itself and to be relieved of annoyances due to non-dependability of a car?

Every customer is a knocker or booster. If he is getting service out of his car he is a booster. If he is not, he will tell his troubles.

Investigate Premier's record, analyze construction, and compare it point for point with every car of American or European manufacture, and you will find the answer.

Write, call or phone for a demonstration. New Premier now on our salesroom floor.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

“O THAT WONDERFUL THING CALLED SLEEP.

DEAR, how I wish we didn't have to spend so much time in sleep," said a strenuous young woman to me the other day. "If only we didn't have to go to bed at all, what a lot more we could accomplish and how splendid it would be."

Doubtless you have heard that wish before, perhaps expressed it yourself. If so, you will probably be ready to put me down as lazy or queer when I confess that it is a truly terrible thought to me.

Like almost every mortal in this overcrowded day and generation, I have often been troubled by the pressure of more life than I had time to live, and I have often wished that the days might be longer, but I certainly would not wish them longer at the expense of doing away with night and sleep.

To regard the wonderful peace of night as merely a negative day, and that marvelous thing called sleep as an unfortunate waste of time, is truly typical of the impatient utilitarianism of today.

All life is attention. Everywhere in the world we find two forces combining to make the perfect whole. Ebb and flow, day and night, seed-time and harvest, positive and negative, labor and rest, male and female. So runs the eternal systole and diastole that keep the heart of the world beating.

To have these two forces in two, to want to isolate one from the other, is to go contrary to the eternal law of life, to strike a discordant note in the harmony of the spheres.

And sleep is such a wonderful thing, too! Stop and think a moment. Is there any greater comforter, the fears and anxieties that beset us, than sleep? We go to bed aching in every limb. We lose ourselves; we find ourselves again and lo, sleep has dissolved all the pain and weariness away and left only a delicious languor. We lie down to sleep nervous and anxious. We are sure that we can never overcome some great obstacle which looms in our pathway. We are pessimistically positive that we cannot escape some threatening misfortune. We sleep; we wake. And lo, sleep has shrunk the obstacle to a pigmy size, and the probable misfortune has become a vague and distant possibility.

"Every day is a fresh beginning, every morn is the world made new," says the poet. Don't you think it would be terrible if it were otherwise; if we went on and on with never a break?

I do.

And so, when you grudge the time to night and sleep, remember that without these things the miracle of morning would not be possible. And instead of wishing that night did not interrupt your activities, remember sometimes to thank God that it exists, and that it gives you a chance to "take heart with the day and begin again."

right myself, because when a girl and a boy are twenty-one they should have a right to decide for themselves in such a matter as marriage. I do not know how I can help you, my dear. Ask your young man to be patient and to try and make friends with your parents. He may be able to win them over to consenting to your marriage.

MENU FOR LIGHT HOUSEKEEPERS.

In a little magazine full of household suggestions I recently read the following:

"We are three bachelor maids—not old maids, if you please—and we work for our living and are glad of it. It gives us an opportunity to get out in the big world and keep in touch with things that make for the broadening of our lives. For some years we boarded, but finally the cost of the house became too strong to resist, and we found a little place of three rooms and a kitchen where we could putter around as we liked, and give free range to the domestic longings which were struggling within us for an outlet."

Very Happy Arrangement.

It was a very happy arrangement and for the last two years we have lived both economically and comfortably, thanks to the convenient way in which one is able to buy foods nowadays."

This does not sound much like the average housekeeper with no business ability who is constantly crying "high prices."

"In our boarding house days we were often invited out and when we were settled under our own roof we felt that we wanted to return some of the courtesies which had been extended to us," continued the bachelor girls. "Sunday night, this was the way in which we chose to entertain our friends, for every day was a working day, and with this arrangement we could make most of our preparation the afternoon before."

Blueberry Tea Cake.—This hot cake is especially good for tea. The cake may be baked in muffin pans, and by many is preferred in this form. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add a cup of sugar, a beaten egg, three-fourths of a cup of milk, two and a half cups of flour sifted with two and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of salt. At the last add a cup of blueberries.

Baked Peaches.—Scald the fruit and remove the skin. Place a layer of peaches in a pan and sprinkle generously with sugar; pour half a cup of water over them. Bake until tender and slightly brown, and serve with cream.

Georgia Broiled Ham.—Three hours before the meal, lay the ham in the following mixture: For two slices of ham, use two quarts of water, two tablespoonfuls of molasses, pepper, parsley and bits of butter. Let stand until ready to broil, then drain and broil.

Sally Lunn.—Sift together two cupfuls of flour and a teaspoonful of salt. Beat an egg until light, add a half cup of warm milk, a half of a yeast cake dissolved in half a cup of water, a tablespoonful each of lard and butter and half a tablespoonful of sugar. Pour this on to the flour and beat well, then set to rise in a warm place. It will take about four hours. At the end of that time beat well again and pour into a well-buttered pan; let rise an hour, then bake a half hour in a moderate oven.

Sally Lunn with warm maple syrup is most delicious for an evening tea.

Much Money Spent for Samples.

Some of the larger dry goods houses of this country are said to expend annually as much as $100,000 in the preparation of samples, which are sent to their patrons throughout the country from which to make selections of stock.

Plants Use Poison as Protection.

Many plants use poison as a means of protection. The sun spurge has a poisonous juice which kills any insects which approach it, while the poisonous properties of the deadly nightshade are well known. The bracken fern has such a bitter taste that cows and sheep feeding near it will not touch it, and the leaves of the buttercup have a bitter taste which is much disliked by plant-eating animals.

Pretty Good Motto.

"I knew a man," said a live-wire young minister, "who attributed much of his worldly success to a rule he'd make for himself. He saw how much time and how many opportunities went wrong, and how much money was wasted by indecisionists, as he called them. So he adopted for one of his mottoes: 'Guess quick and stick to it.'"

Cheap Labor in Trinidad.

Labor is so cheap in Trinidad that it does not pay to buy lawn mowers, as coolies will cut the grass with a small sickle or knife at a trifling cost.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.

To remove ink stains from mahogany furniture, put a few drops of spirits of niter into a teaspoonful of water, touch the spot with a feather dipped in the fluid, and immediately the ink disappears. Rub the wood with a cloth wet with cold water. If this is not done there will remain an almost ineradicable white mark.

When next cooking bacon try putting it in a sieve and pouring boiling water over it; then cover for a few moments with cold water, drying the bacon on a cloth before putting in the sizzling frying pan.

To prevent the gravy soaking through the bottom of meat pies, brush over the lower crust with white of egg.

Cafe Orange.—Roll together for ten minutes one quart of strong coffee and two cups of granulated sugar. Allow this to cool, and pour into tall glasses; add to each cup one teaspoonful of orange sirup and the same amount of whipped cream. The pulp of cream may be topped with a maraschino cherry.

Pear Pickles.—Select small pears, remove blossom end, stick them with a fork. Allow to each quart of pears one pint of cider vinegar and one cup of sugar. Put in a teaspoonful each of allspice, cinnamon and cloves, to boil with vinegar, then add pear; boil and seal in jars.

Apple Sauce Cake.—One-half cup of butter, one-half cup of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg, pinch of salt, one-half cup unsweetened apple sauce, one cup raisins, two cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in a loaf.

Creole Chowder.—Grate the corn from four ears of boiled corn. Chop two onions, not very fine. Chop four green peppers, the size of peas. Heat butter (the size of a large egg) golden brown. Put in onions and cook three minutes. Slice four tomatoes, and add these, corn and pepper to butter and onion. Stir, as it will burn easily. Salt to taste. After the mixture looks light brown or golden, set skillet in pan of water and allow half an hour. Serve piping hot.

Baked Corn.—Eighteen ears of corn cut from the cob. Salt to taste. Add three eggs, one at a time, and beat rapidly, a teaspoonful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter, one even tablespoonful of corn starch, made smooth with a little cold milk. Stir all this mixture, add three cups of cold milk and put all into greased pudding dish. Put in a pan of hot water, and bake in oven half an hour.

Corn Custard.—Cut corn from twelve ears, place this layer on bottom of buttered pudding pan. Salt slightly and add six bits of butter the size of a pea, put over this a layer of sliced tomatoes, salt and pepper and bits of butter and a bit of parsley or green pepper chopped fine. Add another layer of corn and tomato, pepper and parsley. Have layer of corn on top. Cover with three cups of rich milk, into which you have dissolved a salt-spoon of soda. Bake one hour in a slow oven. This is fine for a luncheon dish.

Celery Relish.—Twelve stalks of celery, five grains of garlic, twelve green tomatoes, six large onions, two large green peppers (cut part of seeds out), one-half teaspoonful of mustard, one-fourth teaspoonful of black pepper, three cups of sugar, two quarts of cider vinegar. Salt to taste. Boil slowly three hours and put in jars.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—(1) I am very nervous. What can I do for it?

(2) Would a middie and blue serge poplin skirt look nice?

(3) I am a girl of thirteen and do not like school. I do not want to go to school any more, but my parents object. I think it is best to obey my parents, don't you? Love them dearly. EDNA.

(4) You should be outdoors as much as possible, my dear, and eat a lot of nourishing food. Don't think about being nervous. Just laugh at everything good-naturedly. Don't worry about anything, because everything comes out right in time, anyway. The Lord is over all and always takes care of His children in His good time.

(5) That would look very pretty for a girl of your age.

(6) You are quite right to obey your parents. They love you better than anybody else and want only what is best for their little daughter. I am glad you love them in return.

(7) You are quite right to obey your parents. They love you better than anybody else and want only what is best for their little daughter. I am glad you love them in return.

(8) Is it proper for girls to go out horseshoe riding or motorcycle riding with boys?

(9) Is it proper to let the boys hug and kiss us girls?

(10) Should a girl of sixteen stand around the streets at night? C. C. C.

(11) I think you are both too young to go to public dances unless an older person of your family goes with you.

(12) Your mothers are right.

(13) Motorcycling is very dangerous.

ous. A boy who cares for a girl won't ask her to motorcycle with him. Horseback riding is all right if the horse is safe and your parents do not object.

(4) Indeed it is not. Men don't marry the girls that any boy can hug and kiss.

(5) No respectable girl does it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen. My parents are very cruel to me; they do not allow me any pleasures at all.

I have a boy friend who is some nine years older than I. They do not let me go with him nor write to him. I love him and he loves me so much that he asked me to be his wife this fall, but I told him I was too young.

(1) What shall I do: leave home and go with this man or let things go on the way they are?

(2) Can I leave home after I am eighteen if I wish?

I cannot understand why they object to my going with this man. He is of my same religion and is respected by almost everyone and is a hard worker; does not drink nor gamble. DOR.

(1) You are too young to marry. I notice that you live in Wisconsin. In that state you must have the permission of at least one of your parents to marry, no matter how old you may be. I do not think this is

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

The Other Case.
Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but my husband thought I had better write to you and I did so, stating my symptoms. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

Task of Separation.
How important loom the thousand and one things that fill the daily life, yet how trivial is the bulk of them! To separate the realities from the unrealities, the significant from the trifling and non-essential—that surely is the first step to self-knowledge, the one and only royal road to self-conquest.—Collier's Weekly.

"I may have missed one of the elements of the case—though I do not think so. I can be practically certain when I telephone a man I know—or see the morning papers."

"Telephone now, then. But why when the time comes? Why not now?"

Darrow arose to go to the telephone. He shook his head.

"Let Eldridge do his best. He has always succeeded—triumphantly. Now he will fail, and he will fail in the most spectacular, the most public way possible."

"He lifted his eyes, usually so dreamy, so soft brown. Helen was startled at the lambent flash in their depths. He sauntered from the room. After a moment she heard his voice in conversation with the man he had called."

"Hallowell?" he said, "good luck to find you. Did our friend leave on the Celtic? No? Sure he didn't sneak off in disguise? I'll trust you to think of everything. Sure! Meet me at Simmons' wireless in half an hour."

Helen heard the click as he hung up the receiver. A moment later he loomed back into the room.

"All right," he said. "My job's done."

"Done!" echoed Helen in surprise. "Either I'm right or I'm wrong," said Darrow. "Every element of the game is now certainly before me. If my reasoning is correct I shall receive certain proof of that fact within half an hour. If it is wrong, then I'm away off, and Eldridge's methods will win if any can."

"What is the proof? Aren't you wildly excited? Tell me!" cried Helen.

"The proof is whether or not a certain message has been received over a certain wireless," said Darrow. "I'll know soon enough. But that is not the question; can you get out of town for a little while?"

Helen surveyed him speculatively. "If there is no danger, I can see no reason for it," she stated at length, with decision. "If there is danger you should warn a great many others."

"But if that warning might precipitate the danger?"

"Shall I go or stay?" she demanded, ignoring the equivocation.

Darrow considered. "Stay," he decided at last. "I'll bet more than my life that I'm right," he muttered. "Now," he continued, a trifle more briskly, "be prepared for fireworks. Unless I'm very much mistaken this little old town is going variously and duly to be stood on its head at odd times soon. That's the way I size it up. Don't be frightened; don't get caught unprepared. I think we've had the whole bag of tricks. At almost any moment we're likely to be cut off from all electricity, all sound, or all light—never more than one at a time. I imagine we shall have ample warning, but perhaps not. In any case, don't be frightened. It's harmless in itself. Better stay home nights. You can reassure your friends if you want to; but on no account get my name in this. If I am quoted, it will do incalculable harm."

"Why not tell the public that it is harmless?" demanded Helen. "Think of the anxiety, the accidents, the genuine terror it would save."

Darrow rose slowly to go. He walked quite deliberately over to Helen, and faced her for a moment in silence.

"Helen," he said impressively at last, "I have talked freely with you because I felt I could trust you. Believe me, I know the exigencies of this case better than you do; and you must obey me in what I say. I am speaking very seriously. If you allow your sympathies to act on the very limited knowledge you possess, you will probably bring about incalculable harm. We walk in safety only while we stick to the path. If you try to act in any case on what your judgment or your sympathies may advise, and without consulting me, you may cause the city, the people, and all that you know or care for to be blotted out of existence. Do you understand? Do you believe me?"

"I understand; I believe you," repeated the girl a trifle faintly. Darrow left without further ceremony. Helen stood where he had left her on the rug, staring after him, a new expression in her eyes. She had known Percy Darrow for many years. Always she had appreciated his intellect, but deprecated what she had considered his indolence, his softness of character, his tendency to let things drift. For the first time she realized that not invariably do manners make the man.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Fear of Danger.

Before leaving the house, Darrow summoned Jack Warford.

"Come on, old bulldog," said he. "You're to live with me a while now. The game is closing down."

"Bully," said Jack. "I'll pack a suitcase."

"Have it done for you, and sent down to my place. We must hustle for the Atlas Building now."

"What's doing?" asked Jack, as they boarded a surface car.

"Absolutely nothing—for some time perhaps. But we must be ready. And the waiting will be amusing, I promise you that."

When they arrived at the Atlas Building Darrow was surprised to find Simmons already in charge of the office.

"Thought you were on night duty?" said he.

"I am," replied Simmons curtly. "But judging by what you said this morning, I considered I'd better be on the job myself."

"Good boy," approved Darrow. "I see I've made no mistake in you. Just stick it out twelve hours more, and we'll have it settled. Anything more?"

Simmons thrust a message across the table.

Darrow took it quite calmly. At this moment Hallowell entered.

"What time did this come?" asked Darrow, nodding to the reporter.

"At twelve thirty."

Darrow nodded twice with great satisfaction.

Then quite deliberately he unfolded the paper and perused its contents. Without change of expression he handed it to Hallowell. The latter read aloud:

"To the People: A traitor is among you—one who has betrayed you, one and all, but whom you cherish to your bosoms as a viper. I, who am greater than you all, have laid my commands upon him, and he has seen fit to disobey. He is now in hiding among you. This man must be produced. I would not willingly punish you, but this man will, must be carried out. If he is not found by six tomorrow a siege will be sent to you that you may believe, I am patient, but I must be obeyed."

"No, what do you think of that?" cried Hallowell. "He doesn't even mention the name of his friend to the dear people who are to hunt him down! Fine dope!"

Darrow's face expressed a sleepy satisfaction. He stretched his arms and yawned.

"You might supply the deficiency," he suggested. "Well," he remarked to Jack, "that settles it. Everything's running like a catboat in a fair wind. He's in communication with us; he is gaining confidence in his inflated imaginary importance; we are to have a continuance of his peculiar activities; and we can put our hands on him at a moment's notice."

"What!" shouted Hallowell and Jack Warford, leaping to their feet.

"Where is he?" demanded the reporter.

"How do you know?" cried Jack.

Simmons, his head-piece laid aside, looked up at him in silent curiosity.

"It is sufficient for now that I do know," smiled Darrow. "As for how I know, that last wireless proved it to me."

All three men immediately bent over the message for a detailed perusal. After a minute's scrutiny, Hallowell looked up in disappointment.

"Too many for me," he confessed.

"What is there in that?"

But Darrow shook his head.

"I play my own game," was all the explanation he would vouchsafe.

"You may as well knock off, old man," he told Simmons. "I don't think there'll be anything more doing to-night; and it doesn't matter if there is. Tell your other man to jot down anything from that sending, if any comes. Now," he turned to Hallowell, "I want to see your managing editor."

The three took the subway to City Hall Square. The managing editor received Darrow with much interest, the vehicle of a big scoop brought in far enough ahead of going to press to permit of ample time for its development.

"Now, Mr. Curtis," said Darrow to this man, "this is going to be an interesting week for you. Here's your last exclusive dispatch. From tomorrow morning every paper in town will naturally get every wireless that comes in."

"H'm," observed Curtis, reading the dispatch. "What next?"

"He'll fulfil his threat. Tomorrow evening at six o'clock he will stop the vibrations either of light, of electricity, or of sound—probably of electricity, as he has appointed the rush hour."

"Most likely," Curtis agreed. "Warn the people to keep out of the subway, and not to get scared. Take it easy. There's no danger. Explain why in words of one syllable."

"Sure."

"Now, this is what I'm here for. Up to now these manifestations have been harmless in their direct effects. But follow the hypothesis to its logical conclusion. Suppose this man can arrest the vibrations not only of light and sound, but also of the third member of the vibratory triad. Suppose he should go one step farther; and, even for the barest fraction of time, should be able to stop the vibrations of heat!"

The managing editor half rose. As the idea in its full significance gained hold on their imaginations the three men turned to stare blankly at one another.

"That is annihilation!" Curtis whispered.

"On a wholesale scale," agreed Darrow calmly. "It means the death of every living thing from the smallest insect to the largest animal, from the microbe to the very lichens on the stones of Trinity. I agree with the way you look." He laughed a little. "But the case isn't so bad as it sounds," he went on. "If the crust of the earth were to collapse, that would be annihilation, too. But it isn't likely to happen. There are several things to think of."

"What, for the love of Pete?" gasped Curtis. "Any small efforts at muckraking this refrigerator trust would be thankfully received."

"In the first place, as you know," explained Darrow, "his power seems to be limited in certain directions. He apparently can stop vibrations only of certain defined wave-lengths at one time. It may be that he is unable to stop heat vibrations at all."

"You'll have to do better than that," growled Curtis.

"The rest is faith—on your part," replied Darrow. "For I'll guarantee that even if Monsieur X has this power, I'll stop him before he exercises it."

"Guarantee?" inquired Curtis.

"There's nothing to prevent my moving to California or Mombassa if I must be obeyed."

"The Danger Isn't the Point—It's the Fear of Danger."

thought myself in any danger here," Darrow pointed out. "It would be very easy for me quietly to warn my friends and quietly do the grand sneak."

"True," muttered Curtis, rummaging on his desk for a pipe.

"The danger isn't the point—it's the fear of danger," said Darrow. Curtis looked up, arresting the operation of crowding the tobacco into the pipe bowl.

"Suppose that throughout the length and breadth of this city the idea should be spread broadcast that at any given moment it might be destroyed. Can you imagine the effect?"

"Immediate exodus," grinned Curtis. "Immediate is a nice dignified word," he added.

"Quite so, and then?"

"What in blazes would four million city people without homes or occupations do? Where would they go? What would happen?"

"You see what I mean," went on Darrow, after the slight pause necessary to let this sink in. "The fear would bring about a general catastrophe only less serious than the fact itself. It's up to you newspaper men to see that they don't catch this fear."

"There'll be a hundred letters from foxy boys with just enough logic or imagination to see the possibility of cutting off the furnace; but without imagination enough to get the final effect of telling people about it. Suppress it. Unless I'm mistaken, the affair will be over in a week."

Curtis drummed thoughtfully on his desk.

"It's got to be done, and it will be done," he said at last. "I'll get to every paper in the city tonight—if it costs us our scoop."

"But won't the people who write the letters tell about it, anyway?" asked Jack. "And won't the outside papers have the same stuff?"

"Sure," agreed Curtis promptly, "but what isn't in the city press doesn't get to the mass of the public; that's a cinch. There will be some thousands or even tens of thousands who will leave; there'll be rumors a-plenty; there'll be the damndest row since the Crusades—but the people will stick. I'm taking your word for the danger."

"Well, I'm the hostage," Darrow reminded him.

"Correct," said Curtis, reaching for his desk telephone.

Hallowell followed the visitors to the narrow hall.

"Now," said Darrow in parting, "remember what I have said. Don't mention my name nor indicate that there is anywhere an idea that the identity or whereabouts of Monsieur X is by anybody suspected."

MANIKIN BALLPLAYER

Makes Lusty Swipe at Ball When Spring Is Released.

An ingenious and amusing toy has been designed by a Massachusetts man and is shown in the illustration. A manikin, with pivoted arms and a bat in its hands, is fixed on a horizontal rod. On the other end of the rod is a ball rest, in a shallow hollow. A spring reaches from the manikin's hands to his feet and there is a catch in the back by means of which his hands can be pulled up and the spring stretched. A cord with a handle on it is attached to the catch and releases it when pulled. When the catch is released the spring pulls the figure's hands down and the bat, which has a wing on the end, makes a sweeping slam at the ball. Usually it hits it, being adjusted for an accurate shot, but a miss is no more than even a Ty Cobb might do.

Dinner Stories

A German doctor was consulted by a very sick patient and having called while the doctor was engaged, he wrote his prescription and threw it down to the sick man in haste, saying: "There, take that!" The patient took the prescription and left a few days after he returned to the doctor and reported himself well.

"But," said he, "I found it hard to swallow, as I never swallowed paper before as a medicine, but not at all, and am well, thank God!"

There were both sorrow and excitement in the little country home—sorrow on the part of an elderly lady, and excitement on the part of her son, who was starting to try his luck in "the big city."

"Now, Jim," said the old lady, "ye should get on finely for ye'd tell me that the streets of London are paved with gold."

"I ha' ma doots about that gold, Sandy," Jim confided to his special chum on the way to the station.

The journey was long, but very full of interest to Jim, and Euston station came all too quickly to the country-bred boy.

Barely had he reached the precincts of the station when, to his surprise, he espied a stily reposing on the curb a bright, glittering sovereign. Eagerly he picked it up, and in doing so stumbled over a blind beggar.

At once his sympathetic heart went out to the unfortunate man, and placing the sovereign in his hand, he said: "Take this, my friend, I can see them, the can't!"

No Matter Who.

A party of women were being escorted through the statehouse by a bowing and scraping guide. The women were of the enthusiastic type and raved over this and that and said, "Oh, simply too gorgeous!" Finally they were shown the portrait of a former governor. "Oh! superb, isn't it?" said one of them, and "an excellent likeness, too. A portrait of whom did you say it was?"

"Getaway" in Gotham.

A New York newspaper has received a number of letters on the best method of accomplishing a graceful "getaway" when making a call. One correspondent says he manages it by exclaiming suddenly: "Oh, can the piffle; I guess I gotta be goin'!"
